CLERGY VOICE

Dear Friends,

In our new Machzor Mischan HaNefesh for Yom Kippur, we begin the Kol Nidre service by confronting our human vulnerabilities:

*“We tremble because we are mortal;
 We rejoice in our gratitude for life.
 We rejoice with trembling, and enter
 Kol Nidre to face our humanity.”*

How we “face our humanity” is the definition of our character, how we are known, and ultimately, how we are remembered.

Yom Kippur moves us to be thoughtful about how we want to show up in life - how we want to be present in our relationship with ourselves and with others.

Judaism is in the business of helping us become better human beings through the tradition of Mussar*. Mussar is a path of contemplative practice that has evolved over the past thousand years to help us live mindfully as individuals.

Patience is a virtue we all want to work on these High Holy Days - especially in our parking lot! Mussar helps us practice being patient through understanding and curiosity. The Hebrew word for patience is savlanut, which can also mean tolerance and hardship. Not a day goes by that we don't face a frustrating delay or obstacle. In Judaism, finding patience is acknowledging that an obstacle exists and that it is frustrating. Patience is accepting the reality of the situation while seeking a way to both recognize the frustration and tolerate it. Mussar actually urges us to be curious about why we feel like we are going to “boil over.” This practice helps us calm and soothe ourselves even during the height of a difficult experience.

Usually, patience means we need to slow things down or, as Rabbi Perr says, “[open] the space between the match and the fuse.”

Mussar also confronts the fact that in the face of injustice or another's suffering, patience is not a virtue.

Having holy curiosity about how we respond in moments of conflict helps us be aware and non-judgmental of ourselves, thus choosing our actions rather than being subject to our reaction. Yom Kippur teaches us to be intentional, in other words - returning to the art of prayer to face our humanity. That's why we spend the day in the synagogue.

Come join us on the pathway to mindfulness through Mussar. We are beginning a study of Mussar this year as a Temple Israel community. Over the summer, we trained a number of people to lead small groups in this mindful practice. It has been enlightening for all participants, and now we want to invite you to embrace this Jewish practice that includes meditation, journaling, and intentional practice.

Rav Zissel²¹ said it best when he said, “Mussar is the work of a lifetime, which is why you have been given a lifetime in which to do it.”

May this new year be a time for each of us to live with more enthusiasm, less self-judgment, and more curiosity. Mussar paves a road for us to do so.

B'virkat Shalom—With Blessings of Peace,

Rabbi Marcia Zimmerman
Alvin & June Perlman Senior Rabbinic Chair

THE WORLD OF MUSSAR

Are you seeking a dynamic spiritual path that also has practical applications in your daily life? Ways to engage more deeply and meaningfully in Judaism? Ways to connect more deeply to yourself, others and God? Are you motivated by a unique learning and leadership opportunity that provides you with incredible life skills?

Many people are seeking to live with greater consciousness and mindfulness both in their actions and thoughts. Mussar, a Jewish spiritual pathway, explores personal characteristics, called middot in Hebrew, that each of us has in different measure. Through working on the development and awareness of these soul traits, each of us learns how to respond to the world in ways that help bring about greater peace, compassion, understanding, and joy. Mussar has been practiced for over 1,000 years and is growing rapidly as a dynamic and relevant way to create meaning, provide real life skills, and deepen connections between people.

Join us in September for two different opportunities to explore Mussar with Julie Dean. Julie has over 25 years of experience as a professional facilitator and leads Mussar across the Twin Cities.

She holds a Master's degree in Experiential Education and enjoys creating interactive learning on a variety of topics related to Jewish spirituality.

The Making of a Mensch: The Joys and Challenges of Modern (grand)Parenting

Sunday, September 16, 9:45 - 10:45 a.m.

This program coincides with the opening Sunday of JEWEL.

Join us to learn how the practice of Mussar can impact how we parent and communicate more effectively with our children.

As a mother of two, Julie understands firsthand that parenting provides one of life's greatest classrooms for learning about life, ethics, and humor.

Becoming a Mensch: Mindfully Living our Values in our Chaotic and Fragile World

Tuesday, September 25, 7:00 - 8:30 p.m.

During this holiday of Sukkot, we will explore how mindful practice cultivates joy and helps us navigate our fragile world.

THE LEGACY OF JANET HORVATH'S KOL NIDRE

Playing Kol Nidre on Yom Kippur has always been meaningful for Janet Horvath. "I focus on setting the tone for the holiday," she says. "It being right at the beginning of the service, I feel it's a great responsibility and a privilege." This year, when she plays it at Temple Israel, the honeyed tones from Janet's cello will carry more significance than ever.

Janet's parents were both musicians, and both were Holocaust survivors. They settled in Canada after the war, where Janet's mother, Katherine, was a piano teacher and her father, George, played cello with the Toronto Symphony. Janet's parents never spoke of their experience during the war, and she and her brother were not allowed to ask questions. It wasn't until 2009, after her mother's death and her father's health decline, that Janet began to learn their story.

One day when "talking shop" with her father, Janet asked George if he'd ever played with Leonard Bernstein. George paled. After a beat, though, he brightened, and exclaimed, "Yes - it was a very hot day! We played in the DP camp in the Jewish orchestra. He came and we played 'Rhapsody in Blue'. It was just fantastic!" She says the memory then left him, but she noted the details and began to research what he'd said.

Sure enough, Bernstein did two concerts in May 1948 in the Displaced Persons camp in Bavaria with an orchestra of 17 survivors. Janet learned that the Museum of Jewish Heritage in New York City had photographs and video of the concerts.

Janet found footage of her father and they were able to watch it together, holding hands, in August 2009. George became animated when he saw himself and said, "How did you find this? It's me! I have so much hair!" She says that her father, who could hardly write at that point, wrote his testimony down for her - in Hungarian. "It was the first time I found out what he went through. And then he insisted on reading it to me."

After her father's death just a few months later, Janet continued to search for details of this story. She connected with other children whose parents had been in that survivors' orchestra. In May of 2018, she and these other descendants were special guests at a commemorative event honoring the 70th anniversary of the concert and the 100th anniversary of Leonard Bernstein's birth.

Janet was asked by a woman organizing the event to play her cello as her father had done 70 years before. "I played Kol Nidre on the spot where my father played with Bernstein," at a site that had been a monastery-turned-hospital for survivors. She has written a manuscript about her experiences called Piercing the Silence - A Memoir in Three Concerts. "This is my legacy - to write my parents' story," Janet says. "Having had that experience so recently, to be able to bring a bit of that back to Temple is really meaningful."

We look forward to experiencing Janet's Kol Nidre again this year and to feel the emotion of her story behind the music as we begin Yom Kippur.

LEARNING AT TEMPLE ISRAEL

Throughout my first two months at Temple Israel, the sounds of play from our Early Childhood Center’s Camp Haverim and chanting from the next generation of B’nai Mitzvah students have welcomed me into the building. From Camp TEKO’s daily experiential education to Shabbat morning Torah study, there are many ways in which the community is learning together.

I am keenly aware that the sounds of joyful children and teens will increase in the weeks ahead. Our whole team is excited to welcome our ECC students and launch a new year for our kindergarten through high school students. JEWL is now entering its third year teaching our young people Hebrew, Jewish heritage, and traditions. Through experiential learning, our students are developing a personal sense of spiritual and cultural identity that feels meaningful, joyful, and relevant. If you are not yet registered, we still have places available in JEWL for the 2018 - 2019 school year.

As I transitioned to living in Minneapolis, I was quickly told that there are two seasons of the year here: “winter” and “road construction.” As we approach the High Holy Days, we can take stock of how we are already succeeding in living our values, and when we may wish to do some personal “reconstruction.” Just as we learn throughout our lives from Torah, from traditions, and from experiences, we also learn from this self-reflection. It has been inspiring to begin working with a team of educators who have a great deal of experience, yet are lifelong learners themselves, always on the lookout for strong new ideas and cutting-edge approaches to learning at every age and stage.

My office is located on the second floor of Temple Israel in our Lifelong Learning suite. Please stop by and introduce yourself. Shanah tovah!

CELEBRATING FOOD AND LIFE

THE BESIKOF FAMILY ESTABLISHES A YOM KIPPUR BREAK-THE-FAST FUND

As the first major Jewish event in Felicia and Max Schulz's lives after liberation from Bergen-Belsen in 1945, the High Holy Days would always hold special meaning for them and their family.

There were many times during the war when they thought they would die. Now they were celebrating Rosh HaShanah and Yom Kippur.

Daughter Shirley was born in the Bergen Belsen Displaced Persons camp where her parents were living, and she too celebrated her first High Holy Days there.

On Yom Kippur they practiced fasting, but it was breaking-the-fast that held important symbolism. After many years near starvation, the meaning and blessing of abundant food would be marked in their family celebrations and traditions.

In memory of her parents, Shirley, husband Marshall and the Besikof Family have established an endowed fund to perpetually underwrite Temple's annual Yom Kippur Break-the-Fast.

"Food was always so important to our family, as it is to all survivors," Shirley said. "Sharing this gift with the Temple community at this time of year has special meaning for us."

Like other Temple families, the Besikofs say kaddish at the High Holy Days for their relatives who died in the Holocaust. "This gift celebrates life, and the memories and lives of all of those lost," Marshall shared.

The Besikofs also treasure the prayer book and tallit (prayer shawl) Shirley's parents were given at the time of their liberation. These heirlooms have been passed along from generation to generation and used at all of the children's and grandchildren's b'nai mitzvah and wedding ceremonies from the U.S. to Israel.

SHIRLEY & MARSHALL BESIKOF

A co-chair of the 1991 Sisterhood Cookbook project and known for her sour cream coffee cake for Break-the-Fast, Shirley is deeply committed to sharing these memories, traditions and recipes.

"Food is fundamental to our Jewish lives—whether we are enjoying challah on Shabbat, eating the matzah at Passover, or breaking-the-fast after Yom Kippur," Shirley said. "Food evokes powerful memories and the connections we share across generations."

Thank you to Shirley and Marshall for sharing their story, their gratitude, and their generosity by establishing an endowed fund to perpetually underwrite Temple's Yom Kippur Break-the-Fast. We look forward to many delicious Break-Fasts with the extended Temple community for many years ahead.

For a tribute gift or contribution toward the Temple Break-the-Fast, please direct your donation to the Shirley & Marshall Besikof Family Break-Fast Fund. Contributions can be made by check, at www.templeisrael.com, or by calling 612-374-0342.

TEMPLE'S NEW NER TAMID

Step inside Temple's chapel and you will find a glowing source of warmth: our new Ner Tamid. This eternal light features blown glass with a hint of blue that splashes upward out of a bronze fixture, whose details came from a cast of the woodwork around it. These details provide a pristine complement to our chapel while casting a radiance around the sacred space.

This stunning piece was created by artist Claude Riedel. Claude has created Nerot Tamid, eternal lights, for more than 30 years for congregations across the world, including sanctuaries and synagogues in Croatia, Israel, Great Britain, and across the United States. He says he crafts his pieces to evoke a "radiant purity of light which inspires and calms the spirit," and Temple's new Ner Tamid emanates calmness with its luminous warmth. Claude points out that this Ner Tamid is unique because it features barbed wire from the Hasag concentration camp in Poland that was donated by Ruth and Walter Elias.

The Ner Tamid was purchased through the Dienard Fund. Miriam (Dienard) Kelen remembers celebrating her kids' B'nai Mitzvah in the chapel and said that the new Ner Tamid "fits perfectly." Harriet Bart, who helped with the creation and acquisition of the new Ner Tamid along with Marilyn Chiat, was married in the chapel. Harriet said, when looking at the installed piece for the first time, "It belongs there."

NEW YOM KIPPUR PRAYER BOOK

Last year, we introduced Rosh HaShanah Mishkan HaNefesh, whose thoughtful words helped us celebrate the new year with renewed vigor.

This year, we are excited to introduce the Yom Kippur machzor, Mishkan HaNefesh. As we sit together in the sanctuary listening to the cello hum Kol Nidre, we will open our new books and begin to read Yom Kippur: the Jewish people's Festival of the Soul and Kol Nidre its sacred portal - a night of deep emotions, a night, as the Psalmist wrote, to "rejoice with trembling."

We look forward to being together as our new machzor guides us through the journey of t'shuvah (repentance) and cheshbon hanefesh (self-reflection) to bridge the personal and the communal. From moments of awe to moments of solace, from the solitude of contemplation to the solidarity of song and worship, Mishkan HaNefesh inspires a holistic experience through the High Holy Days while embracing both the rich liturgical voices of the Jewish past and the aspirations of our people today.

The prayer books are generously provided in honor of the Hasko and Dveris families. We are grateful for this new set of books that will provide us with art, inspiration, and liturgy for our High Holy Days services.

TEMPLE WELCOMES NEW DIRECTOR OF ADVANCEMENT

Rachel Schachter joined our Temple Israel staff as our new Director of Advancement on August 27. Rachel comes to Temple with extensive synagogue experience. Most recently, she was the Development Director for Temple Beth Am in Seattle, Washington, a Reform synagogue of about 900 households. She led the team there to successful Annual Funds, galas, comprehensive major gift programs, and the Nachshon Campaign, which eliminated more than $1 million in congregational debt. Additionally, she worked with the local Jewish Federation in Seattle and Camp Young Judaea West, where she oversaw the Jewish summer programming.

RACHEL SCHACHTER

A native of Minnesota, Rachel is thrilled to return to her home state with Len Mitchell, whom she married in August, along with their dogs, Dewey and Oliver. Rachel says she is excited to get to know Temple's congregation, and that she's "truly looking forward to partnering with the incredible team of clergy and professional staff to further the mission, vision, and values of Temple."

We are excited to welcome Rachel to our Temple Israel community.

WHAT IS THE TEMPLE ISRAEL FOUNDATION?

A 501(c)3 nonprofit organization separate from Temple Israel, the Temple Israel Foundation celebrates and sustains Temple Israel by providing a permanent base of financial support, an endowment, to augment and strengthen Temple Israel's programs and activities.

For more information about the Temple Israel Foundation, contact Rachel Schachter at 612-374-0302 or rschachter@templeisrael.com.

ANNUAL GIVING

Thank you for your continued commitment to Temple Israel. Your contributions enable Temple to be there for each of us wherever we are and whenever we need it.

Your total Annual Giving (recognized as Circles of Giving) is the result of three separate giving opportunities:

Annual Financial Commitment

This is one of the expectations of membership - that each congregant considers their ability to help sustain Temple by making a commitment each July. Thank you to those who have made their commitments!

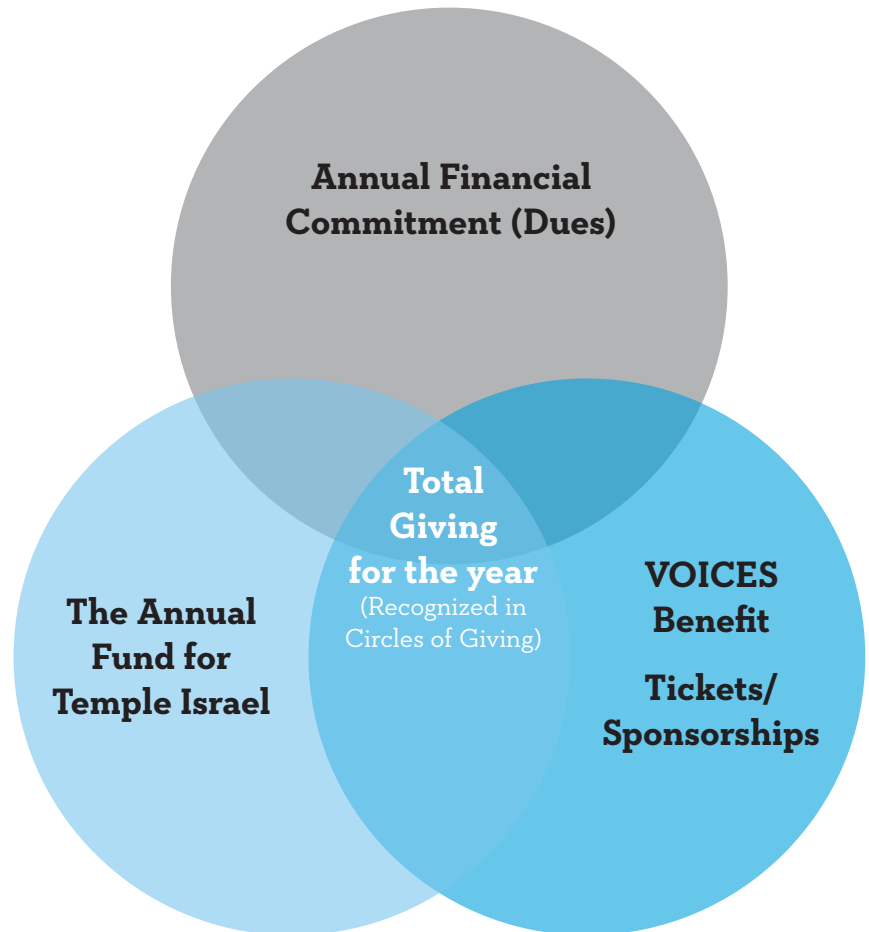

VOICES Benefit for Temple

A great time to build community and raise significant funds for Temple all while enjoying a great night, VOICES is beloved. We are looking forward to planning VOICES 2019 and are excited to share that information with everyone soon!

Annual Fund

Launching this year for the first time, The Annual Fund for Temple Israel is a philanthropic invitation to give a gift to Temple outside of dues or VOICES. Generous congregants often look for a place to contribute outside of their regular membership commitment. The Annual Fund is an opportunity for all congregants to consider gifts (of any size) during the season of the High Holy Days. Be on the lookout for your Annual Fund materials soon! (Remember: this is a gift that can be paid anytime during the year; we're simply inviting your consideration during High Holy Days.)

Each of you should have received your High Holy Days informational flyer inside your membership packet, as well as FOUR admission cards to Temple Israel's High Holy Days. We are pleased to provide every household with four admission cards this year. We want to ensure that everyone who would like to bring a guest is able to easily do so. We look forward to sharing in the joy of the new year with each of you.
